

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

Alessa Ellefson is a bit of a globe-trotter--born in Texas, she was raised first in Spain, then Belgium, before landing in the US of A to study... math (the one subject she'd vowed never to take again after graduating from high school). In terms of writing, she's tried her hand at a number of different genres, including screenwriting and poems.

Blood of the Fey is her first published novel (her previous stories are tucked safely away for fear of adding more horrors to this lovely world). It is also the first in the Morgana Trilogy, though many more tales are jousting in her head for the next spot at the end of her pen.

More information on what goes on inside Alessa's devious mind can be found at www.alessaellefson.com